

Applying to be Considered for Submatriculation in the Master's in Computer & Information Technology Program

As noted on the School of Engineering & Applied Science (SEAS) submatriculation site @

<http://www.seas.upenn.edu/undergraduate/degrees/submatriculation.php>

“Qualified undergraduates in Penn's other schools may apply to submatriculate into any of the Penn Engineering master's degree programs, subject to their home school's rules and regulations.” Therefore, undergraduate students from outside SEAS may apply to be considered for submatriculation status in the Master's in Computer and Information Technology program. Such students may also want to consider a computer science minor -

<http://www.cis.upenn.edu/current-students/undergraduate/minor.php> or computer science as a second major -

<http://www.cis.upenn.edu/current-students/undergraduate/second-major.php>

Wharton students may also wish to consider the Operations & Information Management program -

<http://opimweb.wharton.upenn.edu/> .